

West Virginia Surplus Lines Export List

Pursuant to Section 7, Series 20, Title 114 of the West Virginia Code of State Rules, the Insurance Commissioner declares the following insurance coverages to be generally unavailable in the authorized market at the present, and thus exportable, and adopts the following export list. Accordingly, for those insurance coverages which are included on the export list, a diligent search among insurers admitted to do business in this State is not required before placement of the coverages in the surplus lines market.

The export list is not exclusionary. It does not affect what may or may not be placed through surplus lines insurers. It is a procedural tool. For those items on the list some of the procedures for surplus lines placements are eliminated - simplifying the process. If a coverage or class is included on this list the diligent search of admitted insurers is not required. If a coverage or class is not included on the list, the normal diligent search will still be necessary.

It is not the purpose of the export list to include every possible surplus lines exposure. The purpose is to list obvious coverages and classes that in almost every case will only be written by a surplus lines company. If a coverage or exposure is not on the list it may still be written through surplus lines if the procedures of Section 4, Series 20, Title 114 of the West Virginia Code of State Rules are followed.

Following is the published West Virginia Surplus Lines Export List of coverages and classes eligible for export to non-admitted insurers participating in the surplus lines market:

The Surplus Lines Market

The surplus lines market, hereafter referred to as surplus lines, is a supplemental market of insurance companies that do not have a certificate of authority to write insurance in West Virginia. Laws and regulations provide a mechanism to control the surplus lines brokers' "export" of business to recognized non-admitted insurers. Though specifics may differ, there is a consistency in the basic framework of surplus lines laws throughout the various states. The prohibition against soliciting business on behalf of nonadmitted insurers is universal, as well as the requirement that there be a diligent, good faith effort to place the insurance with an admitted insurer. Documentation and justification of the surplus lines placement is always required. Restrictions on using surplus lines for the purpose of price advantage and restrictions on exporting different layers or segments of a risk are common. Several states use an export list of insurance coverages and classes. Some states have exemptions for larger insureds. West Virginia surplus lines rules and procedures are consistent with most other states in these areas.

Frequently Asked Questions

What is your surplus lines tax rate?

- 4% of gross premiums less return premiums due to cancellations or premium reductions. Gross premiums include all policy fees.

What is the 0.55% policyholder surcharge?

- W. Va. Code §33-3-33 imposes a policyholder surcharge on the policyholder of any fire insurance policy or casualty insurance policy equal to 0.55% of taxable premium. "Taxable premium" means the amount of gross direct premiums, annuity considerations or dividends on participating policies applied in reduction of premiums less premiums returned to policyholders due to cancellation of policies. The policyholder surcharge is not imposed upon qualified surplus lines policy fees.

Is there a stamping fee?

- No. West Virginia does not have a stamping office.

Can non-residents obtain a surplus lines brokers license?

- Yes. West Virginia has a non-resident surplus lines licensee's license. For more information, the website is located at: <http://www.wvinsurance.gov/Default.aspx?tabid=306>.
